Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

This spring, senior citizens will be eligible for coupons to redeem for fruits and vegetables at Louisiana farmers' markets under a $500,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom. "This is a pilot program that we feel will benefit both our senior citizens at a certain income level and local produce farmers who sell through roadside stands or farmers' markets," Odom said.

Under federal guidelines in the first year of the program, an individual will be eligible for $20 in coupons to be redeemed at 20 farmers' markets and approved permanent roadside stands in Louisiana, Odom said. Assisting the department in securing the grant were U.S. Senators John Breaux (D-La.), and Mary Landrieu (D-La.).

Breaux, the ranking member on the Senate Special Committee on Aging, said, "These $20 coupons will help local farmers sell more fruits and vegetables and, at the same time, help older Louisianans buy fresh produce to maintain a healthy diet." Landrieu added, "I am pleased Louisiana is involved in this exciting initiative, which has the potential to help our farmers and senior citizens by increasing consumption of locally grown fruits and vegetables, while also helping ensure that our senior citizens have their nutritional needs met."

The program will kick off in Louisiana May 1. "In the coming months we will identify eligible farmers, farmers' markets and senior citizens and begin distributing the coupons May 1," Odom said. Eligible seniors will be those age 60 and above with income less than 185 percent of the poverty level.

Officially known as the Seniors Farmers' Market Nutrition Pilot Program, under the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation, $10 million was made available nationwide to fund grants in 2001. "Through the grant application submitted by the department's Marketing Division we were able to capture $500,000 of the available funding," Odom said.

"In addition to added nutritional value for senior citizens, the program will also support small farmers selling at local farmers' markets and roadside stands. The increased revenue to these farmers helps both them and their local communities," Odom said. "The program will increase the consumption of locally grown fresh fruits, vegetables and herbs, expand participation in farmers' markets and present the opportunity for developing new farmers' markets," he said.

Louisiana cotton acreage expected to be up this year

Cotton acreage in Louisiana is expected to increase this year by 10 percent to 12 percent over last year, says LSU AgCenter cotton specialist Dr. John Barnett. The anticipated number of acres planted with cotton in 2001 is estimated at 760,000 acres to 770,000 acres, Barnett said, adding that there is a possibility cotton acreage could increase even more — to as much as 800,000 acres.

"In 2000, an estimated 2,633 farmers planted 690,000 acres of cotton in Louisiana," Barnett said. "This is an increase of more than 80,000 acres compared to the 1999 crop. On the other hand, lint yield per acre was an estimated 633 pounds, which was down 74 pounds from 1999." The estimated on-farm value of the 2000 crop, including seed, was $235 million, he said.

"This is substantially less than previous years, when the state cotton crop has been valued at as much as $500 million," Barnett said. "Cotton, however, remains one of the three major row crops grown in Louisiana - the others being sugar and rice." The anticipated increase in acreage this year is because of depressed markets in most major row crops grown in Louisiana and optimism in regard to the recently implemented Boll Weevil Eradication program, Barnett said.

"The Boll Weevil Eradication program has been very successful in the first full year in the northeastern section of the state," he said. "The program is nearing completion in the Red River region of the state and has almost totally eradicated the boll weevil from that cotton-growing area." However, on the down side, escalating production costs and low prices for 2001 perpetuate an already difficult situation for producers, he said.

Transgenic or genetically altered varieties that possess weed and/or insect resistance constituted close to 90 percent of the varieties planted in 2000. This trend is expected to continue in 2001, Barnett said, adding that the use of reduced tillage methods to produce cotton has become widespread in recent years and will likely increase in 2001. A survey of Louisiana cotton producers conducted in 2000 revealed that LSU AgCenter programs targeted toward variety development were considered to be the most pressing need, Barnett said.

"Cotton continues to be one of the three most important row crops in Louisiana," he said. "Indications are that acreage will again increase in 2001, perhaps bringing cotton back to its former position as the No. 1 row crop in Louisiana." Transgenic varieties will continue to be planted on a high percentage of the acreage, according to Barnett, who said the boll weevil eradication effort will continue in 2001 and should sustain another very successful season. "Variety selection will be the key component of a successful cotton production program in 2001," he said. "A good yield in the fall starts with planting the best-suited variety in the spring." Irrigation may again be a critical component of increasing yields and maintaining profitability in 2001. After the extremely dry conditions of 1998, 1999 and 2000, producers are more concerned with irrigation techniques than ever before, he said. "Irrigation consistently increased yields in 2000," Barnett said. "So irrigated acres are expected to increase in 2001."

Questions about irrigation and drainage can be answered by calling Bill Branch, irrigation and drainage specialist at the LSU AgCenter's Scott Research/Extension Center in Winnsboro. Branch can be reached at (318) 435-2908 or by e-mailing bbranch@agctr.lsu.edu.

In addition to the irrigation specialist, several other specialists are located at the center to provide quicker response to problems facing cotton producers in 2001, Barnett said. Among those located at the Winnsboro facility are specialists in weed science, pest management, soil fertility and cotton production.

First few hours in the life of calf are critical to its survival

The first few hours in the life of a calf are critical to its survival, and some may need assistance, according to Dr. Steven S. Nicholson, extension veterinarian with the LSU AgCenter. "Weak calves born into wet, muddy conditions may have a problem getting up, walking and obtaining an adequate amount of milk," Nicholson says, adding, "A weak calf may be the result of a difficult calving. Or a diet low in protein during the last third of pregnancy may result in a cow having a weak calf." Nicholson also cautions that thin cows often produce less milk for the calf.

"Although not a common problem, some calves may be born healthy and strong yet seem unable to locate the udder and teats," the LSU AgCenter veterinarian says. "These calves are sometimes referred to as dummies by disgusted ranchers, who have to put the cow in a chute and physically train the calf as to where and how to nurse." But there are other reasons that may prevent a healthy newborn calf from receiving an adequate amount of milk, according to Nicholson. "A heifer may not accept her calf and allow it to suckle, or the size and shape of the teats of an old cow may make it difficult for the calf to nurse," he says. "Another problem could be if mastitis has destroyed the milk-producing tissues in part of the udder."

Whatever the cause may be, calves that do not consume two quarts of colostrum milk within a few hours, and perhaps a gallon within 24 hours, are at risk of dying from an infection, the LSU AgCenter veterinarian stresses, saying failure to obtain the disease resistance provided by milk antibodies is a major reason for calf diarrhea and septicemia. Nicholson says antibiotic treatment and replacement of fluids and minerals in sick calves can be successful and that warming the calf and intravenous fluids may be life-saving.

"Management must respond quickly if the underlying problem is failure of the calf to receive adequate colostrum antibodies soon after birth," Nicholson emphasizes. "For example, colostrum milk can be collected from the cow and force-fed to the calf through an esophageal tube." In another management strategy to prevent problems, Nicholson says in some herds supplemental protein and energy feed during the last third of pregnancy may be necessary to ensure birth of strong calves that have adequate milk available.

Mardi Gras Recipes

Mardi Gras Beans

Stage one:

2 cups bean mixture (soaked, washed & drained)

*1 lg. ham hock or chopped ham

1 quart chicken stock

4 bay leaves

*2 tablespoon Creole seasoning

1 teaspoon seasoned salt

1 tablespoon parsley flakes

Cover and simmer slowly for 3 hours.

Stage two (add to above):

2 cans stewed tomatoes

3½ cups chopped celery

2½ cups chopped onion

2 cloves minced garlic

2 hot peppers, chopped

2 banana peppers, chopped

Simmer uncovered 1½ hours; stir often - gets creamy.

Stage three (add to above);

*1 lb. smoked sausage, sliced

*2 lb. cooked chicken, deboned

Simmer covered for 30 minutes.

Mardi Gras King Cake

*2 tablespoons sugar

2 envelopes of dry active yeast

7/8 cup warm water

1 stick oleo

7/8 cup evaporated milk

*½ cup sugar

2 teaspoons salt

*4 eggs

5 cups flour

*½ box brown sugar

*1 cup granulated sugar

2 tablespoons cinnamon

1 stick oleo, melted

*1 cup confectioner's sugar

*2 teaspoons milk

*¼ cup sugar (green)

*¼ cup sugar (purple)

*¼ cup sugar (gold)

Combine sugar, yeast and water in bowl. Let foam. Place oleo, milk, sugar, and salt in small pot and melt slowly. Beat eggs into foaming yeast and add milk mixture when it is lukewarm. Add flour, a little at a time. Knead for 5-10 mins. Grease a bowl with oleo, place dough in bowl, turn dough over in bowl and then cover bowl with a wet cloth. Let rise until double in size, about 1-2 hours, in a warm place. While dough is rising, mix sugars and cinnamon. Punch dough down when doubled. Roll out to about 18"x36". Brush with melted oleo and sprinkle with sugar mixture. Cut into three strips, rolling each like a jelly roll, then braid. Cover with a wet cloth and let rise until doubled again in size. Place a little doll (one that won't melt in the oven!) in one of the rolls, after braiding. Bake for 20-30 minutes at 350°. When cooled spread top with glaze made of confectioners sugar and milk. Sprinkle with colored sugars that have been mixed together. You may need to make the icing 3 times to cover cake.

Mardi Gras Rice Salad

*2 cups cooked rice

1 cup frozen green peas, cooked & drained

1 cup frozen corn, cooked & drained

3 tablespoons chopped green bell pepper

½ cup shredded purple cabbage

1 teaspoon garlic powder

Juice of 2 lemons

½ cup shredded purple cabbage

3 tablespoons chopped green onion tops

3 tablespoons chopped parsley

*2 teaspoons Creole seasoning

¼ cup olive oil

Cook rice according to package directions and let cool. Combine with all other ingredients, toss well and chill.
